Lesson for February 20

SERVING IN AND THROUGH THE CHURCH.

LESSON TEXT—Matt. 5:13-16; Acts 2:42-47.

GOLDEN TEXT—We are laborers together with God.—1 Cor. 3:9.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Praising God in Church.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Serving in the Church.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—The Meaning of Church Membership.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Living and Working Together in the Church.

There is an utter lack of connection between the subject chosen by the lesson committee and the passages of Scripture selected. The first exhibits the responsibilities of the subjects of the Messiah's kingdom, and the second pictures the graces which were upon the members of the primitive church. Definite recognition should be given this in our interpretation of the passages.

1. The Responsibilities of the Subjects of Messiah's Kingdom.—(Matt. 5:13-16).

The whole mass of mankind is shown in the Scriptures to be corrupt—the whole world in moral and spiritual darkness. It is the high privilege and solemn responsibility of the subjects of the kingdom to exert a saving and uplifting influence on the world in which they live. They are to live such lives as to purify and enlighten. This can only be done in the measure that they personally know Jesus Christ, the King, and strive to make known His glory and power to others.

1. "Ye are the salt of the earth" (v. 13).

The properties of salt are: (1) Penetrating. This means that the disciples must not separate themselves from the world, but thrust themselves into its activities. Salt must be brought into contact with the substance to be affected by it.

(2) Purifying. The influence of the disciples of Christ is to uplift and purify.

(3) Preserving. Salt has the tendency to arrest decay. The influence of believers tends to save the world from perishing in its own vices.

2. "Ye are the light of the world" (v. 14).

Light illuminates and warms. In order to perform its mission, light must not be hidden. The city on a hill was not intended to be hid.

This world is dark and cold. Many are the pitfalls and snares set by the devil. Believers in Christ should so live that the unwary ones be kept from falling into them.

11. Characteristics of the Primitive Church.—(Acts 2:42-47).

The behavior of the members of the early church was as marvelous as their gifts of speaking with tongues and performing mighty miracles. It was the result of the Holy Spirit in their hearts.

1. Their shared instruction from those who knew the Lord (v. 42).

This is always so. The fulfilling mark of the spirit-filled believer is eagerness to receive instruction from those who have been taught by the Lord.

2. They abode in fellowship with one another (v. 42).

Spirit-filled believers have an affection for their kind.

3. They observed the memorial sacrament of Christ's death (v. 42).

Those who have entered into fellowship with Christ will faithfully observe this memorial.

4. They continued in prayer (v. 42).

A sure mark of the spirit-filled believer is a life of prayer.

5. They were together (v. 44).

This unity was the result of their having been baptized into the one body of which Christ is head (1 Cor. 12:13).

6. They had a community of goods (v. 44, 45).

They sold their possessions and distributed them to all men as they had need. This proves that they were under the power of the supernatural. It is not a natural thing for one to abandon his title to earthly possessions.

7. They were filled with gladness and singleness of heart (v. 46).

Those who are really born from above are filled with great joy and will devote themselves to the doing of good to others.

8. Praising God and having favor with all the people (v. 47).

Such unselfishness gained the attention of the people and induced them to yield themselves to God and such as were being saved were added unto them.

Fullness of the Spirit
God cannot give fullness of the Spirit to him who does not have such fullness of trust as to yield his life to Him.—Eckhart.

Self-Will
The queer thing about self-will is that it kills the very thing it wants—freedom.—Southern Methodist.

Christ Opens the Door
Christ opens the only door for the ascent of man.—Southern Methodist.

Music Lovers' Gathering
The "standees" rail, running midway around the top gallery at the Metropolitan opera house, New York, is as much one of the sights as the "diamond horsehoe" in the same auditorium. It is the gathering place of a motley and democratic crowd of music lovers from many foreign lands, and the only strict convention imposed is silence during the acts. One standee found himself in company with a Russian piano teacher, a German butcher, an Italian laborer and a Cuban music student.

What I Know About Horace Greeley

By C. F. Whitman

The writer was educated politically by Horace Greeley. I began reading the New York Tribune, of which he was the founder and editor, in the Fremont campaign of 1880, when only eight years old.

It was a sad day for the country when James Buchanan was elected President of the United States, for he had no part of the spirit of Andrew Jackson who, in his place, would have nipped rebellion in the bud.

The "Old Public Functionary's" election was celebrated at the village, some three miles from our farm. I saw the flash of the guns from a window in Grandfather's kitchen and heard reports of the guns. Every shot seemed to go right through me. Buchanan was an old dotard, having long been in public office, and was unfit for the crisis then at hand.

Stephen A. Douglas, in his place, would have made a model President and maintained the integrity of the Union.

My grandfather Whitman knew more than any of his brothers or neighbors. He had been a supporter of Andrew Jackson, but broke away from his party on the Slavery question. In my mind, I can see him now, sitting in his arm chair, reading the New York Tribune. He died two years later. He did not seek office and would not support his party when he believed its policy pernicious and wrong—such as favoring the extension of slavery into free territory. For instance, As may be supposed, I was greatly influenced by his views. After his death, the Leonards, Uncle Nat, Uncle Jake, and Aunt Susan, Horace Greeley, and of course, readers of the Tribune, at whose home in Buckfield an older brother and myself frequently went, kept my interest in Horace Greeley and public affairs from waning.

Aunt Susan "kept tabs" on public men, and put a cross opposite the man's name, who proved himself unworthy of confidence and support. This greatly impressed me.

In 1860, Abraham Lincoln with Hannibal Hamlin was nominated at Chicago, largely, as we thought, by the efforts of Horace Greeley, and we had a chance to celebrate the election, which we did in royal good style.

Greely followed President Lincoln's inauguration. For Sumner, I felt the President called for volunteers to put down the Rebellion, an army was gathered at Washington, a part of which was sent to attack the Confederates at Manassas, where in July, 1861, it was defeated by Gen. Joseph E. Johnston's forces from the vicinity of Harper's Ferry, arriving to the aid of the King of the South in the nick of time.

Gen. Patterson, the Union Commander at Harper's Ferry, failed to hold Johnstown in check, as it was intended, and was displaced by another general. The baleful effects of the battle of Bull Run was felt through the whole war at Washington.

Greely blamed Lincoln for not sending to the front 100,000 men. The President was governed by his military advisers. The people of our town who were Union men, did not blame Mr. Lincoln, but put their criticism upon the Union incompetent commanders. It was the first rift, though small, between Greeley and Lincoln.

Gen. Alexander Longstreet's Artillery Commanders at Gettysburg, stated since the war in Scribner's magazine, that he played the Union forces was well planned, and that the Union victory would have resulted. This looks like good sound military sense.

for the Presidency, as the Southern delegates vetoed the proposition as soon as made. President Lincoln, on seeing that the Confederacy would collapse, was asked what he would do. He replied, "I would do what I could to save the Union, and I would do what I could to save the Union."

Johnson and Seward found they had an elephant on their hands, whom they didn't wish to try as no jury in Virginia could be got together to convict him. Greeley should have allowed them to have got rid of him the best way he could.

The way Greeley came to have any part in the bailing it was said, was like this: Davis' wife went to his counsel, Mr. Charles O'Connor, of New York and told him a pitiful story of Davis' impaired health from his confinement and rigorous usage, and stating that she feared he would die unless released and asked if there wasn't some way to get him out of prison.

The great lawyer said there was a man who could do it. "Who is that man?" she eagerly inquired, "and won't you go and see him?" "The man is a boy, depending mostly on his day's work as support of his family. He was a true and faithful husband and father, and will be greatly missed by his family and other relatives. EZRA F. BEAL'S JOURNAL

GOOD SLEIGHING—INTEREST IN THE RAILROAD—BUSINESS DULL OVER THE COUNTRY

Edited by Don C. Seitz

Jan. 4, 1898—Sunday and very pleasant with 7 inches of snow on the ground; sleighing; snow in Portland about 3 inches. Webster has concluded to take the farm 3 years from Jan. 1, inst., upon shares. E. W. Howe has been at Portland a part of the last week and will go again tomorrow for a few days.

Leonard Andrews of Biddeford is here and will attend the temperance meeting at the Universalist Church, Christmas so far has been moderate and very favorable for the time of year.

One quarter of the winter has now gone and as yet but little snow and but little rain. The weather has been generally favorable and pleasant winter has not been since 1919, which was destitute of snow until March and generally warm and bridges, laying new tracks, repairs to the Portland and all other mechanical work on the Road between Island Pond and Portland.

Jan. 11—Sunday. Cold, fair weather and about 12 inches of snow on the ground. The weather is quite mild for the season and has been so far this winter.

The Legislature opened last Wednesday. I expect to go over the whole line and examine the bridges the coming week.

Feb. 7—Sunday, cold and cloudy, good sleighing, about 12 inches of snow on the ground. The weather remains very pleasant and fine for the season. A more favorable and pleasant winter has not been since 1919, which was destitute of snow until March and generally warm and bridges, laying new tracks, repairs to the Portland and all other mechanical work on the Road between Island Pond and Portland.

Business is exceedingly dull all over the country. In Portland, especially. Business has never been less in this village for 10 years than now.

Money in Banks is plenty, but there is no call for it except to pay debts; there is no circulation of money. I am yet engaged all the time of the year and have been since Portland and Island Pond.

The Buildings are generally filled up, but the Bridges require a great deal of attention.

Feb. 13—Sunday. The weather has been pretty cold since last Tuesday, when about 8 inches of snow fell, the most during any one time this winter.

Wednesday was very pleasant until night, when it began to blow and continued through the next day.

ly half of lot 556 extending through Cumberland Street to Rumford Avenue in Rumford. Lot conveyed has an area of 2775½ square feet and fronts on the avenue.

Waterford—Fred M. Skinner of Waterford to Amy E. Faulkner of New York and Bertha S. Gruenberg of Germantown, Pa. Part of homestead farm lying on both sides of road leading from South Waterford to Norway. General warranty deed conveyed by General W. W. Pond; land of Carl O. Warren; the Peter N. Haskell heirs; John Edgeley and John Nurni.

Things Farthest Away

In the early days, the 20 ft. overhanging waterwheel served the pioneers, and a few do to this day.

On these wheels, perhaps twenty or more spoke shaped buckets, shaped much like the footboard for the driver of a trolley coach, are spaced around the outer edge of the wheel, and each bucket having water fills the buckets on one side, so that the water weight turns the wheel, and after each bucket empties there follows glistening drops, a pretty sight in the sun.

There are about three hundred known spiral nebulae, objects that are flat and spiral in form and are found to be galaxies of variable "island universes" situated at distances of the order of a million or more light years. They consist of millions of stars. They are distributed around and in the remotest regions known, and from the milky way and these objects are shaped much like the waterwheel or nearer perhaps to the pinwheels of fireworks but in forms as varied as flowers.

Some of these nebulae behave much like the waterwheel with water drops from it.

The micrometer measurements of these stars which are involved within the arms of the nebulae or "buckets" indicates that the period of revolution of the spirals to be from 61,000 to 220,000 years of time.

Like the slow motion in the movies, the nebula faithfully enacts the outward motion of the waterdrops of the wheel, we cannot see falling down or flying up but the stars or suns are actually drifting out from the folds of the spiral arms of the nebula, one star following another in curving paths from the parent body like sparks from the pinwheel, but oh so very slow.

The spirals are thousands of light years in diameter, first formed from dormant matter of cosmic fields, of seeming almost of unbounded dimensions and is caused to rotate by, probably some infinite current.

Emissions of light waves of which there are 50,000 to the inch, are coming toward us from the spirals, these distant objects, and if these objects are not considered, that is, not emitting waves like the projecting lantern, but sending these emissary messengers out in all directions, as does the lighthouse at sea, we may believe, philosophically if not scientifically that double the inconceivable distance of these "infinities", these regions of space alive with vibrating light emissions, nor is this all objects in opposite directions the phenomenon is repeated so that these vast known distances are multiplied fourfold by this hypothetical logic.

Brace Up the Children to Keep Up in School Work

Here it is! Read it. Profit by it if you can, but allow us to suggest that everyday work at something useful is better than schooling for such children.

The article from the Youth's Companion follows:

"Did you ever hear a high school student say to his father or mother, 'I think I shall flunk English and algebra and French. They're too hard!' And have you not heard the indulgent parent reply, 'Well, never mind. You can take them over again next year, and they'll be easier then.' 'You're young yet, son. Another year in school won't matter.' We have heard such a conversation more than once.

"So the boy stops trying to get through his courses successfully. He loafes, flunks his examinations, and appears again the next fall to take his first year in high school over again. Probably he falls into habits of indifference and laziness and loses near after year—perhaps even more than the good of his education.

"Repeaters greatly increase the cost of the public school system. Taxpayers grumble about the high cost of their schools and then contribute to that expense by encouraging their own children in a laziness that wastes the time and the effort that hard-working teachers are giving to the schools.

"If parents could be made to pay for the cost of teaching their children the same subjects twice over, we should probably see a sudden improvement in the quality of the school work.

"Besides the money cost to the community there is harm done to the character of a boy, who, in his formative years, is allowed to fall into the habit of laziness and indifference. A life easily ruined by the degeneration of moral fibre so induced. It is not hard for parents to find out what sort of work their boys and girls are doing in school, and a little firmness on the subject is usually enough to keep the youngsters up to the by no means inaccessible standards of our public schools. Don't let your child drift into the habit of failing. That is a road that leads to a life of incompetence and unhappiness.

WAY DOWN IN MAINE

The roses nowhere bloom so white as in the sunnier Maine.

The sunshine nowhere seems so bright, As down in Maine.

The birds nowhere sing so sweet, And nowhere hearts so lightly beat, For here in Maine, and earth both seem to meet, Way down in Maine.

Days are never quite so long As down in Maine.

And when my time has come to die, Just take me down and let me lie Close where the rolling sea goes rolling by, Way down in Maine.

Never there a land so fair As down in Maine.

So full of song, so free from care, And I believe the happy land, As down in Maine.

GROWING TOWNS

Growing towns are a good deal like growing boys. Someone has to feed them. To make a boy grow, you have to give him a lot of good, wholesome and nutritious food. Some families think they do not get much personal return, as the boy may not do much for his family, but they have got to get their satisfaction out of producing a real boy. If you only half feed a boy, he will only become half grown.

Much the same with towns. They also need a lot of good nutritious food, in the shape of business enterprises, the willingness to work, and public spirit. People get out of a town about what they put into it, just the same as with a boy. A lot of folks are always kicking because their towns do not grow fast enough, when they have done nothing to feed that town with the effort and spirit that create community growth.—Berlin Reporter.

Whist Party—Pageant of the Times

The selection are in session, preparing the reports for printing.

The whist party, Wednesday, at the library, was well attended, there being four tables in play. Many new books will be added to the library, as the money gained from these parties is to be used for this purpose.

Several people from here motored to Brownfield Motor Hall to the movies, Saturday night.

There will be a baked bean supper, followed by an old fashioned dance, at the Grange Hall, Friday night, February 18. Music is to be furnished by Bennett's Orchestra of Brownfield.

Several people passed through town, Saturday, on their way to spend a few days at the Club House near Walker's Bridge.

What might well be termed a pageant of the times was enacted on the main road here one day last week. First came two motor trucks, heavily loaded with boards. After these had rattled out of sight and sound, along thundered a tractor, towing a load of wood. The next scene to meet the gaze was several horse teams laden with boards, like the trucks; and—last but not least—four oxen plodded slowly but steadily along with their load of bolts.

After these had rattled out of sight and sound, along thundered a tractor, towing a load of wood. The next scene to meet the gaze was several horse teams laden with boards, like the trucks; and—last but not least—four oxen plodded slowly but steadily along with their load of bolts.

Several people passed through town, Saturday, on their way to spend a few days at the Club House near Walker's Bridge.

What might well be termed a pageant of the times was enacted on the
